

COPYRIGHT¹, CONSENT AND RELEASE

I give KIYU public radio the right and permission to use information given by me in a recorded interview for their show Raven's Story. I consent to allow KIYU to produce CD's of Raven's Story segments for educational and documentary purposes. I also consent to allow KIYU to deposit the original recordings in the archives of the University of Alaska Library, Fairbanks, to be available for educational, documentary and research purposes. The University may make some of this information available to the public over the Internet. The fact that recordings and transcripts are posted on the Internet site does not make them public domain documents, nor does it constitute a right to copy and /or publish these oral history materials. No use (beyond limited quotation) will be made of these interviews without the express permission of the Contributor and the UAF Oral History Program. Permission must be obtained for publication of any material beyond that which might jeopardize the integrity or value of the whole copyrighted work, as covered in the Fair Use portion of United States copyright law. To gain permission write Dr. William Schneider, Oral History Curator at ffwss@uaf.edu or UAF Oral History Program, Elmer E. Rasmuson Library, UAF, Fairbanks, AK 99775.

Researchers and the general public who access the produced CD's and Internet segments are asked to approach the material with respect for, and awareness of the cultures and individuals whose lives, ideas, and creativity are represented. Because of the dangers of cross-cultural misunderstandings, users are encouraged to become knowledgeable in the cultural backgrounds of the speakers before interpreting and referencing these works in print or media publications. Users are strongly encouraged to consult the Guidelines for Respecting Cultural Knowledge established by the Assembly of Alaska Native Educators at <http://www.ankn.uaf.edu/standards/culturaldoc.html>, and the Principles and Standards of the Oral History Association at <http://www.dickinson.edu/organizations/oha/EvaluationGuidelines.html>.

Joe Butrus

Date 6/15/2005

Date

¹ In this case copyright means ownership of the way the material was presented in Raven's Story, and not the original ideas or information.