Interview with Chancellor MARSHALL LIND

This is the second in a five part interview with Chancellor Marshall Lind. In this interview, conducted by Anne Foster and Paul Schneider, Chancellor Lind provides more detail on the budget issues and the University's approach to providing academic delivery within the budget constraints. He then tells about his relationship with Provost, Paul Reichert. Then he discusses the University's approach to classified research. Finally the discussion focuses on the relationship of the different campuses and of the University System.

The interview was conducted in the Chancellor's office.
