Stan Zielinski

Fairbanks, Alaska

March 18, 2014

Series: Pioneer Park Aviation Museum lectures

Stan Zielinski talked about a record balloon trapeze artist in North Pole. He talked about balloons in proximity to each other. Comment from the audience member. Stan talked about the balloon rally in New Mexico and why he has never made it down there. He talked about dealing with power lines. He said a lot of people have been killed that way because of exploding balloon tanks. He talked about wing suits. He said he is still interested in these sorts of things. His equipment is gone now. He will go up with other people. Sam Rosini was the last person he knew of that had a balloon. Jack Kline passed away in Hawaii from a heart attack.

Question from a member of the audience that can't be understood. Stan said he is willing to still teach someone to fly. He said he would have qualified people repair his balloon and then it would have to be inspected. He said there was someone in Fairbanks who sewed his own balloon.
